

It would be nice if the federal standards were minimum requirements, and states, such as Indiana, could set higher standards. This will follow most federal regulations and allows states to raise the minimum to fit the local needs. The current law in Indiana has been tremendously helpful in keeping telephone spam out! Please let us keep our privacy in Indiana.